

ARLIS/NA + VRA 3rd Joint Conference 2016, Seattle – Conference Session

Session organized by the Association of Architecture School Librarians and cross-listed with the 2016 AASL Annual Conference

Engaging the School: Making Scholarship Visible

Raising awareness of the work undertaken in design-related disciplines and their associated libraries is important for gauging impact throughout the research continuum. The speakers in this session present efforts to increase the visibility of work – in the library, in the classroom, through scholarship – and in the connections between all of these communities through evidence, meaning, and measures.

Moderator

Beth Dodd, Head Librarian & Curator, Architecture & Planning Library, University of Texas at Austin

Speakers

Daylighting to sunseting: The lifecycle of a re-imagined bibliography

Sarah Dickinson, Research Support Services Librarian, Harvard University Graduate School of Design

Johanna Kasubowski, Design Resources Librarian, Harvard University Graduate School of Design

Design/Build: Embedded librarians create connections from first year to master's reports in the APDesign curriculum

Ellen Urton, Undergraduate & Community Services Librarian, Kansas State University

Thomas M. Bell, Faculty/Graduate Services Librarian, Kansas State University

Balancing the irregularities of citation metrics in tenure and promotion of faculty in art, architecture, and design related disciplines

Maya Gervits, Director of the Littman Library, New Jersey Institute of Technology

Rose Orcutt, Architecture and Planning Librarian, University of Buffalo

The "Kepler system:" Ten years of digital outcome assessment in architecture, art, and design schools

Burcak Ozludil-Altin, Assistant to the Dean in the College of Architecture and Design, New Jersey Institute of Technology (presenting for John Cays, Associate Dean for Academic Affairs, NJIT)